Slaves to Spring Catarrh Restored to Health by Pe-ru-na.

SPRING THE TIME TO CURE CATARRH.

Pe-ru-na Invigorates Mind and Body.

Hon. Wm. G. Hunter, Ex-member North Carolina Legislature, writes from the Census Office Building, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"The greatest family medicine ever discovered, in my opinion, which comes from experience as well as observation, is Pe-ru-na."

"The most common affliction to humankind is a bad cold. Pe-ru-na drives it out of doors, wards off catarrh, invigorates and gives fresh strength to mind and body. I give Pe-ru-na my unqualified endorsement."—Wm. G. Hunter.

Takes Pe-ru-na Every Spring.

Miss Tilly Marx, 421 14th St., Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I am pleased to endorse Pe-ru-na, as I found it very effective in ridding my system of a severe cold and catarrhal trouble, after I had tried many other remedies without getting relief."

"I took Pe-ru-na for two weeks, when I was much better, and in two weeks more I was entirely rid of the cold and catarrh. I shall take it every spring as a tonic, as I found that it made me much better in every way."—Tilly Marx.

Miss Lydia Herziger, Grand Recorder of American Daughters of Independence, writes from Neenah, Wis., as follows:

"I have used Pe-ru-na now for four years, each Spring and Fall, and it keeps me perfectly well and strong."

"I am able to continue working and do not have to take a three months' rest, as I used to do every year. This is a great comfort to me, as I was not able to afford such a long rest."

"I find that it is a great preventive for colds and coughs and soon rids the system of all disease and is an admirable medicine. I can honestly endorse it."—Lydia Herziger.

MR.
JAMES A.
MOODY

Mr. James A. Moody, Ex-president Board of Education, Mineral Co., W. Va., writes from 314 Massachusetts avenue, N. E., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"My family have used Pe-ru-na for several years past with excellent results and I take pleasure in testifying to its superiority as a remedy for catarrh."

"Every spring that dreaded disease will show up in my family and we always turn instinctively to Pe-ru-na to ward it off."

"It has never yet failed, and I never lose an opportunity of recommending it to my friends."—James A. Moody.

spring weather. This renders medicines more effective.

A short course of Pe-ru-na, assisted by the balmy air of spring, will cure old, stubborn cases of catarrh that have resisted treatment for years.

A Word of Advice.

To those who have been afflicted with chronic catarrh we wish to say that the spring season affords you a splendid opportunity to get rid of your disease.

It may be you have been afflicted for several years; you may have tried different remedies. Perhaps you have become discouraged.

Now Is Your Opportunity.

This failure was during the winter months. But now is your opportunity. Nature comes to your assistance at this season.

Just help her a little and she will bring you out of the quagmire in which you have been floundering so long. Give Nature a little assistance lest her struggles be in vain.

A Typical Case.

Geo. M. Fillmore, late 1st Lieut. 3rd U. S. Artillery, writes from 909 L St., N. W., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I brought forward from winter into spring a sickening case of catarrh which was making existence miserable for me, until I was induced to try a bottle of Pe-ru-na.

"An immediate improvement gave me hope, if not relief. I kept up taking Pe-ru-na and it has so strengthened and relieved me that I am now confident of a cure. I heartily endorse Pe-ru-na for catarrhal affections and as a tonic for their weakening effects."—Geo. M. Fillmore.

A short course of Pe-ru-na now will be just in time. During the month of April you will find the strategic time to rid yourself of chronic catarrh, one of the most persistent, stubborn diseases in the whole list of human ailments.

After you have tried it you will say Pe-ru-na is positively the best spring medicine you have ever used.

A great many years of extensive trials of this remedy in this class of derangements have demonstrated that there are no failures.

Thousands of Testimonials.

Thousands of cases might be quoted in which Pe-ru-na has rescued people from the ravages of spring catarrh, and put them on a good, solid foundation of health.

We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving. No other physician in the world has received such a volume of enthusiastic letters of thanks.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio. All correspondence held strictly confidential.

INFANT HOUSEBREAKER.

Nine Year Old Boy Found Guilty of Stealing and Sent to House of Reform.

One of the most remarkable cases of housebreaking perhaps that has ever occurred in Ohio county was brought to the attention of the grand jury at the present term of court. Amos Wallace, the nine year old son of Hardin Wallace who lives about four miles South of Beaver Dam, was the offender. The proof showed that the little fellow had entered the residence of Ozna Shultz and taken a watch, a piece of a ham of meat and other articles of minor importance.

The offense was committed several days ago but, owing to the boy's tender years nothing was done in the matter until this week. The grand jury recommended that the boy be sent to the House of Reform and on a hearing of the matter Judge Birkhead entered an order in accordance to the recommendation, and Sheriff Cal P. Keown left Wednesday at noon with the little fellow for the Reform School where he will be confined for nine years.

CRAZY NEGRO'S DEEDS.

Deputy Sheriff's Head Shot Off, Seven Others Wounded.

House in Which he Was Secreted Burned and Body Riddled With Bullets.

Bob Shaw, a negro maniac, of Lewisport, Hancock county, shot and killed a deputy sheriff and wounded seven other members of a sheriff's posse that was attempting to dislodge him last Monday afternoon from a dwelling house in which he had taken refuge on the day before and from which he had defied all attempts to capture him or approaches to the house for two days. The house was finally set on fire and the negro shot to death when he attempted to escape from the burning wreck.

Shaw's crusade began last Sunday morning when he shouldered his double barrel shot gun and started out. He was known to be of a very religious turn and his wife called his attention to the fact that it was Sunday and he should not go out with his gun. He threatened to kill her and drove her away and proceeded to a neighbor's house where he drew his gun and threatened to shoot those he saw. After much persuasion, however, he left with the words "I am going to kill somebody." Authorities here notified and they found him at his home sitting first on the porch then retiring to the adjoining room where he was heard often in prayer.

He defied all approach and exhibit-

THE SOUTHARD HILL WRECK.

Two Freight Trains Come Together at Full Speed.

Seven Lives, All Train Men, Snuffed Out in an Instant.

One of the most destructive railroad wrecks that has ever occurred in the county occurred between McHenry and Echols last Thursday late in the afternoon, bare mention of which appeared in THE REPUBLICAN last week. It was of such gigantic proportions that a detailed account of it will no doubt be of deep interest to many of our readers even though it has been a week since its occurrence.

The engines of both trains were smashed into scrap iron, a number of freight cars were destroyed and the track was piled with debris and torn up for a hundred yards or more. It was one of the worst wrecks that has ever been known on the road.

The local freight, running between Cecilia and Central City had orders to wait at McHenry for the fast freight.

The engineer and conductor overlooked their order and left McHenry. At the Southard farm, two miles below McHenry there is a sharp curve, with a hill intervening between two straight stretches of track. It was upon this curve that the crash came. Wallace Yates, engineer of the fast freight, was the only man who saw the danger. He jumped and was thrown thirty feet from his engine, suffering many severe bruises but no broken bones.

Conductor Turney saw the engineer jump and he followed suit, but did not clear the train, and he was caught under the engine. He was pinned down though not seriously hurt and the escaping steam from the engine slowly cooked him to death. When he was taken out the flesh dropped from his bones.

Engineer English, of the local and his fireman were both caught under their engine and were crushed to death. Foster Bell, the fireman on the fast freight, was thrown from his engine and was caught under some timbers from a freight car. He lived for twenty minutes, and died just before his body was taken out. He begged the men who were chopping on the timber to work faster, as he said he wanted to see his wife a moment before he died. His prayers were not answered and the girl he married a month ago was never to see him again alive.

The wreck presented a most remarkable sight. On top of one the engines was thrown a car loaded with hogs, many of which were killed by the steam, besides being crushed in the wreck. The other engine plowed into a carload of cattle, belonging to N. E. Crenshaw. Mr. Crenshaw was in the car with his cattle at the time and was thrown among them. His leg was broken and a piece of flesh was torn out of his arm.

Every car of both trains was thrown from the track. Most of them were ruined and all suffered serious damage. They were piled up to the height of more than twenty feet, merchandise of all kinds being scattered about.

Conductor Blacklock, of the local freight, was the only trainman who escaped uninjured. He was sitting in the caboose of his train, talking to two drummers who had taken passage from McHenry to Central City. He was thrown to the floor, but was not hurt.

Within a few very minutes the news of the wreck reached McHenry and half the town turned out. When they reached the scene twenty or thirty farmers had already gathered having heard the crash and roar that told the story for more than a mile. Others gathered in from all parts of the surroundings neighborhood. The four injured men were quickly attended by the physicians, and in two hours the bodies were all taken out.

Wrecking trains were sent out at once from Cecilia and Central City, so that work on the wreck commenced at both ends. The two crews were busy from 7 o'clock in the evening until 7 the next morning, when the last rail was laid and the first train passed over the road.

REFUSE AS FOOD.

Waste From Canning Factories Made Into Jelly.

Hog Liver Dried and Ground and Sold as Coffee---Bones Mixed With Flour.

In selecting the material for the best grades of canned fruits it is necessary for the employees to remove the peels and cores of the various fruits and also all the decomposed and worm-eaten spots, writes Paul Pierce in Public Opinion. These peels and cores and worm-eaten spots—worms included—together with all the spoiled fruit of apples, pears, peaches and every other kind, are dumped together and made into a general pulp. From this pulp, made of the refuse of all kinds of fruits, is turned out a marvelous variety of different brands of highly-colored and tempting looking bottled and canned goods. From this same pulp conglomeration is made "pure apple jelly," "pure currant jelly," alleged plum and quince jellies and jams, apple butter and no end of different kinds of preserves and pie material. It makes little difference as to the appearance and taste of the pulp or principal ingredient. The flavorings and chemicals will make up for all former deficiencies in appearance or lack of resemblance to the fruit it is supposed to represent.

I mention fruits just by way of illustration; the same conditions are true in the manufacture of foods of all others classes. The residue is always made into marketable adulterations, if not by the factory that turns out high-class brand, then by an associate factory given another name of actual manufacturer.

Some of the big packing house collaborate with lower-grade houses, supposedly run by other firms, that utilize all the stock rejected by the big firms, and market all inferior products cast off by the firms that are so cautious of their reputation.

Worn-out horses and mules and those crippled or otherwise injured so as to incapacitate them for service as beasts of burden have been butchered and the meat served in restaurants and on free lunch counters as roast beef, corned beef, beef stew, etc. Hoofs of horses and cattle are used not alone for the manufacture of glues and mucilage but often from making a viscous substance, which, it is claimed, is used in the manufacture of the lower grades of gelatines and jellies. An enormous amount of cheap jelly is made in Chicago from soured pigs' feet and other meats glucose and fruit refuse chemically treated and given names of different fruits. Dr.

Leon S. Waters, expert in food chemistry, recently said that hogs' livers were dried, baked, powdered and mixed with chicory and coffee essence and sold as good coffee.

But even the residue of the factories is not sufficient to appease the seeming hunger for the lower grade foods. It is a fact that pick-ups from the city streets, the cast-off products from big commission houses and the gleanings from the sewer are often employed in produce manufacture under America's system of "commercial economy." Even seaweeds are brought into use to supply the demand. From sea moss is made a gelatinous substance known as aga-aga. Mixed with a amount of pulp from cast-away fruit, a little starch and gelatine, it is dyed and flavored to resemble different kinds of fruit products and is labeled strawberry, cranberry, raspberry, apple, quince, etc. Old bones from the alleys are ground to dust, which is utilized principally as a fertilizer, but sometimes is mixed with flour. It has been claimed that leather from old boots and shoes gathered from the streets and scrap piles is chemically treated, mixed with chicory, ground, and made into a clever imitation of coffee, the kind that is usually drunk by sailors and workmen in the logging camps. More and more is it becoming so that nearly everything thrown into the streets and alleys of American cities is turned into food.

Foods made from these loathsome trashes are, of course, not conducive to longevity nor healthful constitutions; but the danger is not so much in these as in ingredients used in

SUPERNATURAL POWER

Possessed By Priest Who Performs Many Seeming Miracles.

[Marquette, Mich.]

Within the last month as many as 50 Marquette people have made the pilgrimage to Peshtigo, Wis., for the purpose of receiving treatment at the hands of Rev. Father P. S. Dagnault, a Catholic priest who is said to possess remarkable healing powers. The pilgrims have not consisted of any one class of people, but the lame and afflicted of nearly every strata of society are numbered among those who have sought relief, and the exodus at the present time from this city is estimated to be at the rate of 25 per week.

Charles J. Johnson, a landscape gardener, who has just returned from Peshtigo, is one of numerous Marquette people who have been cured by the Catholic clergyman. Johnson says that he had been bedridden with rheumatism for two months before he decided to make the trip to the Wisconsin town and that at the time he left Marquette he was unable to touch his feet upon the floor or even to assist in dressing himself. Two men carried Johnson aboard the outgoing train on a stretcher and when he arrived at his destination an ambulance was required to convey him to the priest's residence.

"I stayed at a hotel in Peshtigo for 19 days," said Johnson in an interview, "and I received one treatment each day from Father Dagnault, who came to the hotel to see me. He did not tell me anything about my case at first and only said he could cure me in time. His treatment was not what I would call a massage. He simply took my limbs in his hands and by a gentle pressure worked from my knees to my feet with a kneading movement.

"When his hands came in contact with my flesh I thought a thousand needles were entering my body, the prickling sensation being most pronounced as he worked toward my feet. I watched to see if he said any prayers when he began treatment, but he did not, and he afterward told me that he does not claim to possess any supernatural powers. After two or three treatments the rheumatic pains left me entirely and I began to walk a little until finally, when I returned to Marquette, I walked on and off the train."

Johnson says that Father Dagnault treats on an average of 40 patients each day and that the number is constantly increasing. Every passenger train into the town brings a new consignment and the procession of cripples to and from the priest's residence is almost continuous throughout the day. The greater number of pilgrims are from Northern Wisconsin, but there are many from Chicago, Milwaukee and other cities.

Father Dagnault is described as a short, thick-set man, with a round, chubby face. His age is given as 67 years and his manner is both kindly and sympathetic. His residence is modest frame structure, plainly furnished, and he leads a simple life, treating the sick and afflicted when not attending to his duties as pastor of his church.

"Father Dagnault told me he could not cure every case," Johnson related, "and I know that a bad case of paralysis was turned away when I was there, the priest telling the patient that she could not be cured by him.

"I asked Father Dagnault how long he had been treating patients. He replied that he had practiced healing for several years as cases came to his notice, but that for over a year he had been almost burdened by visitors.

"Religion was never mentioned in my hearing and when I asked Father Dagnault what his charges were in my case he replied that his services were given free. Most of the cases treated are cripples, although he has almost every kind of patient. Some of his patients make him presents, but he never asks for money, and the poor man gets the same treatment as the rich."

HUMAN FLESH

Tastes Just Like Boiled Rice, According to Congo Cannibals.

[Congo Free State.]

Cannibalism has long been suppressed by the Congo Government, just as a murder is suppressed among civilized communities, but horrible practice is still indulged here and there, as opportunity occurs for evading the vigilance of the authorities. So recently as 1898, and possibly to the present day, it was necessary to maintain a constant guard at the cemetery in Leopoldville, the chief station on the Upper Congo, to prevent the Bangalas unearthing the dead and carrying them off to feast upon. Several such cases were proved against them, and capital punishment had to be resorted to in order to stamp it out. Not all of the cannibal tribes are so repulsive and cruel as the Bangalas. Most of them eat no other human flesh but that of their enemies slain in battle. That source of supply will not suffice for Bangalas, who make up its deficiency with prisoners or slaves. Having broken their victim's limbs, they place him in a pool of water, with his head supported just above its surface so that he may not drown. After having left him in that position for three days (if he survives so long), he is killed and eaten. Another method is to behead the victim single all the hair from the body over an ember fire, and then cut it into pieces for cooking. The portions not immediately eaten are smoke dried and put aside for another occasion. The teeth are extracted and made into necklaces by the women. Sometimes the skin is used for drumheads.

Henry Willington Weak, of the New York Bar, reports a bit of conversation between Rev P. Khol and a young chief named Kalonda. After speaking of the tribal wars the missionary continued:

"Then you have killed many people?"

"To be sure."

"You have carried away and eaten quiet a number of women and children? Of course," said I, immediately, in order to prevent an explosion of wrath on his part, "you do not do so any more."

"No," said he, very deliberately, "I do not do so at all now; but formerly we ate a number of men. We used to kill as many as we wanted at the time and take away the rest of fatten. The women and children is the best."

"How does it taste?" I asked of the young boy, who was standing near the chief (his father).

He answered quiet naturally: "It tastes like boiled rice."

The forest tribes, to whom cleanliness by water is impossible, smear their bodies with palm oil and a kind of red ochre, which they afterward scrape off. The original costume of a few leaves, or an exceedingly small apron made from fibrous bark, for women and a loincloth of the same material for men, has yielded to the superior attraction of common cotton goods, which as reached them from far away Manchester or Saxony. These stiffs, ornamented by large patterns in flaming reds or yellows, delight the eye and rejoice the heart of the Congolese maid and matron, while such of the gentler sex will also condescend to use them. In every tribe, children of both sexes are entirely nude until they reach the age of puberty. In at least one tribe, neither men nor women wear covering. In a few tribes it is customary for the women to remain nude until they are married. Some women denote their married state by covering their breasts with strange ornaments, while others secure this object by elaborately dressing their hair, which they build up to a great height by aid of palm fiber and gum. Both men and women, of whatever tribe, ornament themselves with just as many collars, bangles and anklets as they can obtain. Without exception, the possession of a few strings of colored beads is to them a source of great happiness. They gaze upon such treasures with delight and guard them with jealous care.

Among the Mangbetters, a dead chief is buried in a sitting posture in the center of a new hut specially built on the banks of a stream. Five

HOW TO HOLD A HUSBAND.

The best known guide to married happiness is to hold the husband as you won the lover—by cheerfulness of disposition, patience and keeping your youthful looks. Of course a great many women are handicapped by those ills to which women are heir. The constantly recurring troubles which afflict her are apt to cause a sour disposition, nervousness and a belied mind.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, the specialist in woman's diseases of Buffalo, N. Y., after a long experience in treating such diseases, found that certain roots and herbs made into a liquid extract, would help the majority of cases. This he called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Thousands of women have testified to its merits, and it is put up in shape to be easily procured and is sold by all medicine dealers. This is a potent tonic for the womanly system. So much faith has Dr. Pierce in its merits that he offers $500 reward for any case of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, which he cannot cure. All his asks is a fair and reasonable trial of his means of cure.

"I cannot express my thanks for the benefit I have received from your prescription," writes Mrs. John Wehrly, of Cambridge, Chester County, Md. "I took 'Favorite Prescription' and feel that a perfect cure has been effected. I feel like thanking you a thousand times for all good you have done me, and for the kind and cathartie letters which you wrote. I shall always speak a good word for your medicine whenever I can."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-covered book, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

What to Eat.

What shall you eat? Eat what most pleases your taste. Nature has given you the sense of taste as a sentinel to guard your stomach. If you don't like any food don't eat it. Eating food for strength, when it gives little pleasure to the taste—when it is eaten more from a certain sense of duty than with a keen relish, does little of any lasting good. Eating that to which the taste is indifferent, if not absolutely repugnant, is simply a forcing on both body and spirit of what they do not want. When they benefit at all it is because you have faith they are going to do you good.

A Valuable Discovery.

A discovery made a year ago this spring by Frank Everett, of Cleveland, Ohio which will be of great interest and value to all lovers of house plants, is that by watering plants, with the sap of trees, gathered in the spring, they can be made to grow in the house during the winter with all the vigor attained by outdoor plants in the warm month.

The sap of elm and cottonwood trees is best, for it does not have to be thinned with water to keep it from fermenting, is the case with the sap from maple and box elder trees. Mr. Everett gathers the sap in barrels and keeps it on hand. He finds that the growth produced in the plants by the use of this sap is wonderful. Last winter he grew a fine hill of sweet corn in a common pail in his parlor, to show what he could do, and picked off from the hill on January 1 eight fine large roasting ears, which he has at New-Year's dinner.

He is confident that a large business could be done in gathering the sap for city hothouses.

A DAY'S OUTING

On White Stone Mountain in the Far Away Philippine Islands.

Dumalog, Capis, Panay, P. I., March 21, 1905.

Editor REPUBLICAN:

White Stone mountain is the largest, in this part, of an irregular range that runs on into Yloilo province.

Sometime since I took some young men of my class to climb it. We climbed by a rarely used trail, passing some clear springs of fine water. We found much spiny bamboo, a few bushes of wild coffee, a few mango trees, and high up the mountain side, in what seemed to be some old craters, we found a few good trees fit for lumber. My class could give me no stories of ancient eruptions nor any legend of how one-half of this mountain top was thrown down upon the valley, leaving the great white cliff of honey-combed limestone for a beacon to half the province and as a fitting name of White Stone mountain.

The stone seemed to show some ancient coral formation, but in far prehistoric times raised high from the ocean bed.

From the summit we saw some long lines of narrow gravel roads, built long ago before times of insurrection, but now being slowly repaired, as the struggling finances of a poor people, long torn by a terrible Spanish insurrection, has much to do to meet the many pressing calls for money. What to us is but a pittance is to them real money of great value.

We could see many rice fields but much land is wasting for lack of labor and tools.

How fresh and pure the air seems up here. The haze of smoke from the dry seasons cleaning dims the present view, which in better times, might reach the sea; but through the haze I seem to see a railroad in yonder valley, and now unused lands seem to bloom forth in rarer, better fruits, and cattle and horses (now only seen in dreams) seem to wander in nice clean pastures and anon to seek the shade of spreading trees or the shelter of broad roofs, all their own, undisturbed as of yore by the simple merriment or dancing feet on the parlor floor above them.

The scent of flowers of long ago seems wafted on the mountain air and the dot-like houses in our town seems to have newer cleaner roofs, more rooms beneath them and many flowers on the lawns.

The lazy tano in his "bagag" or "gee string" drinking his tuba or smoking a big long cigar seems to be absent somehow and even the little boys and girls have nice, clean cool cotton garments with clean, happy faces even without their usual cigar. What have the little boys and girls quit smoking too! Their English seems to have a queer accent though. Here the boys wake me up and tell me it is time to go home, and we have the monkeys chattering on White Stone mountain and with a last broad view over the "pearl of the Visayas" we make our way to town. The sun slowly sinks behind the mountains. The gloomy church bells ring out for "oracion" (ave Maria) and all pause, uncover saying a short prayer with much crossing of chest and forehead. I am greeted with "buenos noches." Many brown legged boys in short shirts come out as we pass and say good morning or good evening as their memories may dictate and then, putting their big cigars again in their mouths, they rush off to their play, "each with a light on his face."

Oh we will do great things here in time. Witness my word, O White Stone mountain. But it takes time. "It takes time," echoes White Stone mountain. We have spoken.

Strictly Genuine.

Most of the patent medicine testimonials are probably genuine. The following notice recently appeared in the Atchison (Kan.) Globe: "Joe Tack, a well known engineer, running on the Missouri Pacific between Wichita and Kiowa, lately appeared in a big one, with a picture, and when he was in this office to-day, we asked him about it. He says he had terrific pains in his stomach, and thought he had cancer. His druggist recommended Kodol and he says it cured him. He recommended it to others, who were also cured." Kodol's Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures all stomach troubles. Sold by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro. m

"Consumption runs in our family, and through it I lost my mother," writes E. B. Reid, of Harmony, Me. "For the past five years, however, on the slightest sign of a Cough or Cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which has saved me from serious lung trouble." His mother's death was a sad loss for Mr. Reid, but he learned that lung trouble must not be neglected, and how to cure it. Quickest relief and cure for coughs and colds. GOVERNOR VARDAMAN, of Mississippi, is a candidate for United States Senator. According to the Mississippi idea his cowardly attack on President Roosevelt entitles him to promotion.

GOVERNOR BECKHAM has employed Lewis McQuown and Eli Brown, Jr., to assist in the prosecution of Caleb Powers. The Governor evidently sees no necessity of any more of the $100,000 getting out of his political family. McQuown is chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee and Brown is another pet of the Governor's.

SEVERAL sister States have taken up the good roads proposition and are spending quite a good deal of public funds in road building. If Kentucky would only apply a few thousands yearly of the vast amount wasted and needlessly expended, in the same way a great many more citizens would be benefitted and we too could have a desirable system of public roads.

MOSE FELTNER, the chief prosecuting witness in the recent trial of James Hargis, has appealed to Governor Beckham for soldiers to guard him during his attendance at the Breathitt Circuit Court. He called the Governor's attention to J. B. Marcum's vain effort to procure a guard just prior to his assassination. If Beckham really wants to protect Jim Hargis' prosecutors he has an excellent opportunity to show his hand.

It's Face.

Evansville, Ind., May 23.—Bessie Duncan, a girl fifteen years old, gave birth to a baby two weeks ago. It was left with its grandmother, and last night she laid it on a cot near her bed. During the night it is supposed that the child died, for when the old woman awakened this morning she found a big black cat that belonged around the house, perched upon its face. The animal had eaten nearly all the flesh and was growling and snarling like a tiger. When a woman attempted to drive it away, the cat attacked her savagely and returned time after time to its ghastly prey.

SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

Radium Destroys Poisonous Effect of the Venom of Snakes.

[Harper's Weekly.]

A recent and most curious discovery made in connection with the study of radium is its peculiar property of destroying the poisonous effect of the venom of serpents. This was ascertained in France by Professor C. Phisalix. He states that an exposure of from fifty to sixty hours to the rays of radium is sufficient to destroy the poisonous character of the poison of the viper, and the same is true of the poison of the cobra, which is interesting in view of the fact that the latter poison resists the action of heat much longer. These experiments led to other, where the radium emanation was employed instead of the direct action of the radium rays, and a glass tube was filled with a 1-per-cent solution of viper poison to about two-thirds its height. The tube was then exhausted and filled with air containing radium emanation, after which it was allowed to remain for twenty-four hours in the course of which time the liquid acquired an opalescent luster and a strange odor. When injected into a guinea-pig it had no toxic effect, and the only change noted was a loss of weight by the animal. By diluting the poison with distilled water and exposing as before, it was found that the toxicity disappeared in six hours, but when glycerine was used a much longer time was required. The opalescence mentioned is caused by suspended particles, and the conclusion reached is that the radium emanation acts to decompose the albumenoid poisons. Inasmuch as emanation has no effect on the poisons of the lizard or the common toad it is believed that a new method has been found to study the constitution of poisons of serpents, which will enable the experimenter to discriminate between them.

The Wonderful Stallion.

GOEBEL,

Will make the season of 1905 at E. D. Oldham's stable, near Beaver Dam, Ky., at $15 to insure a living colt. Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur. Season is due when colt is foaled or mare parted with. A lien will be retained on colt until season fee is paid.

This magnificent horse is pronounced by the best judges of horse flesh to be the best combined, saddle and harness stallion in Kentucky. He needs no reputation as a show horse to those who have seen him show. He has been shown at the best fairs in the State each year since he was two years old, and has won more blue ties than any horse of his class. Goebel is a model horse and he proves to be an excellent breeder.

Description and Pedigree.

GOEBEL is a coal-black stallion, three white feet, star in forehead, 16 hand high, will be 6 years old the 1st of May, 1905. He has fine main, tail, style and action, and is pretty as a picture. Goebel was sired by Happy Bell, he by Happy Cross 52 in S. H. B.'s Association. Happy Cross is by Girard's Chief 2253; first dam by old Star Denmark. Happy Bell's first dam by imported Scythian (thoroughbred). Goebel's first dam by Rolla Gold Dust, he by Arabian Gold Dust, he by Dorsey's Gold Dust 150. Second dam is Mollie W., by Fancy Gold Dust, he by old Gold Dust 150. Second dam by Dr. J. H. Thomas' old Cotton Picker. Goebel's first dam, a half-sister to Nellie W.

I desire to thank the citizens for their support last year and would kindly ask all whose desire is to raise fine colts to call and see my stock before breeding elsewhere.

PREMIUM—I will give the season for the best colt of his get this year and $10 for the 2nd best. Colts to be shown at Beaver Dam on Saturday before the Ohio County Fair, 1906.

CHINESE JUSTICE.

How Innocent Men Are Tortured
Until They Are Glad to Die

[London Standard.]

Other events have obscured the news from Peking that torture in China is to be abolished. With reference to this a correspondent writes:

Not many months ago I went to call upon a Chinese Judge at the Palace of Justice. It was summer weather, and one side of the building was entirely open to the courtyard through which one entered the building. In this courtyard there were about 20 criminals, in various stages of dirt and dilapidation. Some were in stocks, some had each thumb suspended by a string to a beam, so that they knelt with outstretched arms like scarecrows; all had their hair unshaven and matted and their faces so caked with dust as to have lost the look of humanity. Inside the court-house Judges of various degree were seated on benches behind long desks, just as they do in England the only difference was that they wore gorgeous silks, and drowsily drank tea from little china basins to while away the afternoon.

After some conversation, it occurred to the chief Judge that his visitors might like to see a trial. So he called for No. 19. A pitiful figure came in, dragging its shackles heavily over the floor, and knelt on the far side of the desk. The visitors were accommodated on the bench itself. Then the Judge leaned over the desk and glaring angrily through his spectacles at the cowering creatures in front of him, told him the story of his crime, which the prisoner must have heard ad nauseam, since he had been in the Court for two years. The trial proceeded somewhat in this manner.

Judge—On such and such a day two carts were going to the village of Ying-pan. The soldiers who were escorting the carts rode some distance ahead of them. You waiting by the roadside, saw your opportunity, and fell upon the carts, intending to rob them. Is it not so?

Prisoner—Most Excellent, I did nothing of the sort. I am a good man and no brigand; if you inquire of my relatives or the head man of my village you will learn that I have a good character and do not steal from carts.

Judge—Have I not just said that you did steal from two carts? How dare you contradict me? That is to say that I am a liar. Attendant, bring the bamboo.

At this point negotiations were broken off, so to speak, while the attendant went for the implements of torture. A little stool was brought to which the prisoner's hand was tied palm upward, and then the bamboo was brought down with vigor upon the poor wretch's wrist. He howled lugubriously but made no signs of confession and thanks to our presence the performance was cut short.

This man had been in prison for two years, and still had not confessed. Sooner or later, however, he would give in, and then his great day would come. Preceeded by trumpeters and flags, he would ride through the city on his tumbril, the observed of all observers; he would be taken to the potter's field side out the walls, and there, before a crowd of spectators, he would suffer death for a crime which, in all probability, he had never committed. That last day is a blessed relief, and, for the most part, the prisoners go to their end laughing and chatting with the crowd. It is better, of course, to confess quickly and be done with it. Yet instinct of self-preservation is strong, and I heard of one contumacious old lady who had defied the thumb-screw and lash for 20 years.

Occasionally there are lucky escapes. Once, before the war began in Manchuria, I came down the Liao River with a Russian expedition. We fought the Hun-hu-tses every afternoon about tea time, but rarely inflicted any damage on them, because they hid in the crops. One evening we got desperate, and pursued them through the gowliang fields, with a complete lack of success, only to find, on our return, that the Chinese Magistrate who accompanied us had collared 12 Chinamen supposed to be Hun-hu-tses, and had them all tied to a pole by their pig-tails. It was the business of the Chinese authorities to deal with all captures, so these 12 men were practically condemned to die. In company with the missionary who was action interpreter for the expedition, I pressed for an inquiry. The result was that six of the victims were proved to belong to a theatrical company which was stranded in the neighboring village. They were instantly released. One of the others was subjected to a more rigid examination, and died under the lash; and, owing to this untoward incident, the rest were set free. But it was pure luck that the whole 12 were not beheaded.
